Market Preview

For the week commencing Dec 02nd, 2024

- This week, we anticipate that mixed investor sentiment will continue, with a predominant sell bias. In our view, trading activities will primarily involve market participants looking to capitalize on gains from their positions as we closely approach the end of the year.
- However, we note that any price dip in strong-performing stocks may present attractive buying opportunities and can potentially lead to an appreciation bias.
- On the other hand, we expect investors to closely monitor the Treasury bills auction this week to assess movements in yields in the fixed-income market, as a possible uptick in Treasury rates could subtly fuel a risk-off bias in the domestic equities market.
